From the Editor

As we already approach the second month of 2025, back into the routines of daily life, I wonder how many of us are keeping all those well-intentioned new year resolutions, if we even made any.

It's so easy to make plans, and yet equally so easy to abandon them when we lose interest, or it seems that 'life gets in the way'.

In Proverbs 19:21 (NIV), we read,

*"Many are the plans in a person's heart,
but it is the Lord's purpose that prevails."*

And, Proverbs 3:5,6 (NKJV) reminds us to:

*"Trust in the Lord with all your heart,
And lean not on your own understanding;
In all your ways acknowledge Him,
And He shall direct your paths."*

So, as 2025 gains momentum, let's remember to trust in God and give our plans over to Him, so that he can direct our footsteps on the right path. May we see the Lord's purpose prevail in our lives as we strive to act worthy of the Gospel of Christ, as our RBC text for the year encourages us to do.

Secretary's page

As I sit here writing this page, I am struck by how much will change before it is read by you.

You are reading what I wrote last month, indeed last year. Since it was written Christmas has come and gone and we have seen out 2024 and welcomed in, with new hope, 2025. We have watched many depressing news stories and the goings on with politicians, TV personalities and others. Two fights (at least) have occurred on Eastenders and Arsenal fans have been excited/upset (delete as appropriate) by the Christmas scores. The news has told of the disastrous Christmas sales in the shops and supermarkets, and possibly one big company has gone into receivership. All the above is guess work and you can now see how much I have got correct.

As we entered the New Year with its brand new 8760 hours, we do so with a sense of optimism, praying it will be a good year but also with some fear because we really do not know what the year will hold for us as individuals, for our wellbeing and health or our finances and relationships. This is true for the church too. So much that is unknown is before us.

Yes 2025 may be a great year where we see tremendous blessing and encouragement but it may also be a very hard year with much to fight. The year ahead we do not know and often we need to be reminded, even as Christians, that we are not promised an easy life.

King David, from the Old Testament, knew what it was to go through good times with victories and also hard times where he felt just like giving up. It was in one of these hard times that Psalm 31 was quilled.

*But I trust in you, Lord;
I say, "You are my God."
My times are in your hands; - Psalm
31:14-15a*

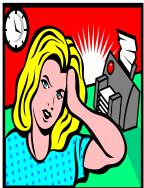

Last Sunday, God willing, I preached on our theme text for the year. Taken from Philipians 1v27 it says:

"Whatever happens, conduct yourselves in a manner worthy of the gospel of Christ"

Let us resolve to do that which we can, whatever 2025 brings: good or bad, calm or storm, health or sickness, plenty or poor, feast or famine, let us be worthy of the gospel of Christ!

My prayer? That as a church and as individuals we will be able to say, we sought to be worthy.

Pruning My Sinful Brambles

During the Christmas holidays, I took on the daunting task of cutting back what felt like acres of vicious brambles which had taken hold of our little side garden. Intertwined with painful stinging nettles, it was an unenviable task! The overgrown jungle was so intertwined that it was hard to see where one thorny stem started or finished. The only option was to don a pair of sturdy gardening gloves and pull out shorter pieces, chopping them up and filling my green garden wheelie bin. It took hours! Little by little, cutting off a couple of feet at a time and snipping with secateurs. It took determination, motivation and patience to work my way through what seemed like an insurmountable job at the beginning.

While I was working and getting into some sort of slow-but-steady rhythm, God used this horrible task to teach me an important lesson. He showed me that sin, when left undealt with, simply works its way into every aspect of my life. Not really noticed at first, perhaps not even causing that much of a problem. But left untended and allowed to grow, it can impact me daily and give Satan a foothold.

I'm not talking about the sins I consider 'huge' like murder and theft. I'm talking about those 'little' sins – like talking extra time for my break, or joining in with gossip. It's easy to validate these little things I come across day to day, especially when it feels justified. But on that day when my fingers and arms were constantly scratched and pierced with thorns, God revealed that these little things (which of course are not from Christ) can be spiritually pruned back, one small piece at a time.

Change is hard, especially when I'm influenced by those around me. In my staff room, I can find myself so easily drawn into discussions which are not Christ-like. Just like the brambles which creep up on my garden and work their way in between the trees and shed walls. Before I know it, I'm speaking about someone in a way I shouldn't. I've asked God to help me prune back this sinful bramble, even sometimes leaving the staff room so I cannot be tempted to join in. With God's help and strength, I try and make a conscious effort to see the good in the person I would otherwise speak of unkindly.

'Watch and pray so that you will not fall into temptation.' Matthew 26:41

My sinful brambles keep on growing of course. I need God's daily forgiveness, grace and strength to help keep them at bay. I do see change, but it's not always in one big 'Damascus epiphany'. Sometimes it's just a little thing, like not yelling at the driver who cuts me up at Gallows Corner. I just thank God when a better choice has been made. It's a powerful witness, especially if there's someone else in the car and annoys the devil no end!

The thorns digging into my arms and fingers were a moving reminder of the thorns which pierced our dear Saviour's head, representing the brambles of sin in each of our lives which He bore on the cross.

At the end of my 5 hours work, the garden was clear, the wheelie bin was full and I felt happy that a horrible but needed job had been finished. But I know I'll need to revisit the garden soon, to trim back the regrowth before it gets out of hand; at least it should be an easier job if I do that. I need to maintain my own daily choices and prune back my sinful brambles. If I maintain those areas of my life where I know I'm weak then, within God's strength, I'll be less likely to succumb to temptation. But any gardener will tell you; it's a never-ending job. So, I'll continue asking God for help pruning them back, so they will not take hold in the same way. I want to leave room for flowers to bloom in my spiritual garden so His glory may shine.

*'He was wounded for our transgressions,
He was bruised for our iniquities:
the chastisement of our peace was upon
Him; and with His stripes we are healed.'*
Isaiah 53:5

Hearing

A tiny lady was the guest preacher. A few minutes into her sermon, she paused and said: "Can you all hear me at the back?" A kind voice replied: "We can hear you fine. But sadly, we can't quite see you."

Visit

The new vicar was doing the rounds to meet his parishioners. At one house where he knocked, a woman inside called out: "Is that you, Angel?"

The vicar hesitated and then called back: "No, but I'm from the same department."

Father

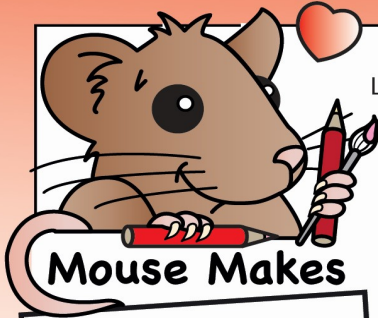

My family was at the dinner table when my five-year-old daughter startled us all by announcing to my three-year-old son: "Dad is not your real father."

My son retorted: "Yes, he is!"

"No, he's not," she insisted. "God is your heavenly father." Then pointing to my husband, she added: "That's only our homely father!"

Bible Bite

A short story from the Bible

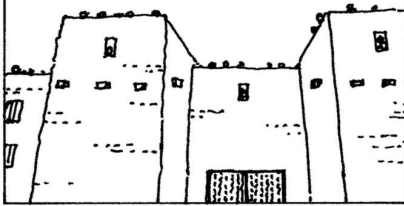

It can be read in the Bible in Joshua chapter 6 verses 1-27

Joshua led the Israelites across the river Jordan. They camped near the town of Jericho and prepared to fight.

The people in Jericho locked the town gates.

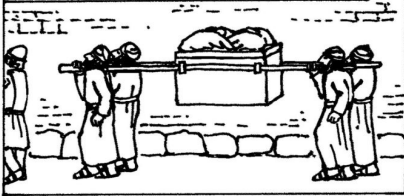

They thought they were safe.

God told Joshua what to do.

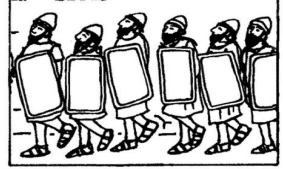

On the first day, the priests carried the sacred chest,

they blew trumpets, and walked round Jericho once.

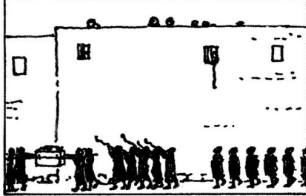

The army followed not saying a word.

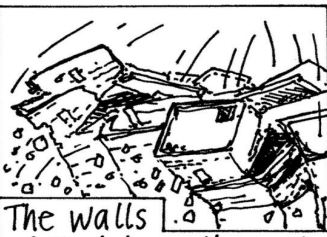

They did this for 6 days.

On the 7th day they walked round 7 times.

The army gave a victory shout!

The walls of Jericho collapsed.

The army rushed into the town and captured it.

Jericho was destroyed.
